

My computer's case features a headphone and microphone connector. Can it be used with my Hercules soundcard, and how would I go about connecting it?

Unfortunately, no current Hercules soundcards have the connectors necessary to use these additional case input/output. In order to use them, you would need to modify the cables to be able to connect them to the back of the card, where all the connections are normally done.